

Senator Robert W. Hayes, Jr.

Dean,

I was blessed to have attended law school with Terry and to have served with him in the General Assembly. In law school, Terry was instrumental in getting a chapter of the Christian Legal Society started and he and I also attended a weekly Bible study. In the General Assembly, Terry was instrumental in the Republican Party becoming the majority party in the House. He and I also were very much involved in the battle against gambling in South Carolina, and he was the author of the amendment that led to the demise of video poker.

Terry was a brilliant legislator, a courageous leader and a talented orator, but I remember him best for his faithful walk with the Lord. His presence is still felt in this state that he served and loved.

Warm regards,

Wes Hayes
